

Liberty Bell Agency, Inc launches a comprehensive new website

New website will provide customers with a wealth of information.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. - April 3, 2007 - Liberty Bell Agency, Inc today announced the launch of their newly renovated corporate website. The new website incorporates recent advancements in web technology, and presents a visitor with a dynamic new look while maintaining a clean and simple appearance.

“Communication is one of the six key components of our company's operating philosophy,” says Jim O'Rourke, Vice President of Liberty Bell Agency. “That is why we are committed to making information readily available to our clients in a simple straight-forward manner. We consider this website to be a complement of the superior level of service we provide to our clients.”

The new website will be maintained regularly to distribute information about Liberty Bell Agency and the services that they provide. In the days to come, visitors will also be able to order and track services online in real time throughout the day or night using an interface with their ECHO access system. "This will give added-value to the services we provide to our clients and the consumers; allowing them more freedom to prepare for their upcoming real estate closings at the time of their choosing."
